DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election, without traverse, of invention I in the reply filed on 7/18/2007 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 1-10, 19-23, and 29-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

4. Claims 1-10, 19-23, and 29-36 are drawn to a method of rearranging an initial hierarchical menu in a voice portal directory having a plurality of voice portlets arranged in one or more layers and including a set of non-terminal nodes and a set of terminal nodes. In order for a claimed invention to be considered statutory under 35 U.S.C. 101, it must be useful and accomplish a practical application. That is, it must produce a "useful, concrete and tangible result" (State Street, 149 F.3d at 1373-74, 47 USPQ2d at 1601-02). In the present case, the final result of independent claims 1, 3, 19, 29, and 33 only refers restoring a portion of the initial hierarchical menu in the second hierarchical menu by replacing one or more groups of voice portlets in the single layer with one or more corresponding non-terminal nodes from the initial hierarchical menu until there are no duplicate voice portlets in the single layer, and not the actual tangible menu displayed on the screen. As such, independent claims 1, 3, 19, 29, and 33 are directed to non-statutory subject matter. The dependent claims fail to overcome the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection directed towards independent claims 1, 3, 9, 29, and 33, and thus, are also directed to non-statutory subject matter.

5. Claims 1-10, 19-23, and 29-36 are drawn to a "program" per se as recited in the preamble (as indicated in the specification that the invention can be implemented in computer software; also, the term "machine readable storage" is not found in the specification and thus, it can be interpreted as carrier waves) and as such is non-statutory subject matter. See MPEP § 2106.IV.B.1.a. Data structures not claimed as embodied in computer readable media are descriptive material per se and are not statutory because they are not capable of causing functional change in the computer. See, e.g., Warmerdam, 33 F.3d at 1361, 31 USPQ2d at 1760 (claim to a data structure per se held nonstatutory). Such claimed data structures do not define any structural and functional interrelationships between the data structure and other claimed aspects of the invention, which permit the data structure's functionality to be realized. In contrast, a claimed computer readable medium encoded with a data structure defines structural and functional interrelationships between the data structure and the computer software and hardware components which permit the data structure's functionality to be realized, and is thus statutory. Similarly, computer programs claimed as computer listings per se, i.e., the descriptions or expressions of the programs are not physical "things." They are neither computer components nor statutory processes, as they are not "acts" being performed. Such claimed computer programs do not define any structural and functional interrelationships between the computer program and other claimed elements of a computer, which permit the computer program's functionality to be realized.
